We desire to call attention this morning to the card of Messrs. W. Freeman & Co., proprietors of the oldest wall paper, window shade and looking glass bouse in Mid-dle Tennessee. Their stock is very large and selected with the greatest care, and comprises all the novelties in the wall paper trade, either of home or foreign manufacture. They are now opening a large lot of French satin damasks which surpass in beauty of design and elegance of finish, anything heretofore offered to the Nashville trade. To their stock of wall papers generally, they invite the attention of the public, and ask a comparison both of qualities and prices before purchasing elsewhere. Their stock of window shades is much the largest and most complete in the city, and they are now adding for their spring trade a new line which far surpasses anything they have previously had the pleasure of exhibiting to their friends. Here again in prices and quality they defy compedition and feel confident that an exemination of their goods will convince the public that they are the leading house in his line, in the trade of Nashville. As manufacturers of gilt work, such as pier and mantle glasses, window cornice, etc., etc., Messrs. Freeman &Co., are years ahead of any house in Tennessee, and have but few superiors in the Eastern cities. The looking glasses and cornices of the Maxwell House, the magnificent work just put up for our esteemed fellow-citizen, Judge John M. Les, in his new house, and the elegant cornices just being finished for Mr. W. H. Evans, all show that our home nanufacturers have the enterprise, if our fellow-citizens will but bestow upon them the patronage they deserve, which will make Nashville one of the most important manufacturing centers in the Southwest. Brown, the weather observer, will no doubt guarantee us a good week, beginning the 25th of April this year. The weather is the most important essential to a successful meet ing. If we can have that, the races this year will reflect credit on our Memphis sportmen, and also help to remunerate the Accident to Gov, Senter. We regret to record quite a painful accident that happened to Gov. Senter last weick. He has been for some time rustieating among his friends in East Tennessee. On last Wednesday, the 22d inst., as he was riding out, being mounted on a rather wild and spirited animal, the horse became unimanageable. In rearing and plunging the horse fell, catching the leg of the Gover por between him and the ground. He has since been kept within doors, and the injury, though there is no fracture or abrasion is a very severe one. The thigh is much bruised and swollen above the krice causing the intensest pain. By quietude and care we trust that nothing e rious will result from the accident, and that he will be speedily restored to his accustomed health and vigor. Lieut. Geo. E. Albee, of the 24th United States Infautry, after a brief absence, returned to his post of duty at this place yesterday.

A Very Old Landmark Gone. The Trade Style Silk Hat,

One day last week, during the prevalence of high winds and rains, we noticed that a small log house near the corner of Summer and Gay streets had been blown down and had tumbled to pieces. Yesterday on seeing some hands chopping into some of the red cedar logs we made some inquiries concerning the ruined domicile. We found that it was older than the State of Tennessee as a State, and ancient as the famous house Jack built. It was built by the early settlers from cedar timbers cut off the ground, and the logs bear signs of loop holes used by the inmates for purposes of defense against aboriginese and other "varmints." It has a history and had withstood the wear and tear of time, and the rude blasts of the elements, while a great 4F Cherry st., one door from Union, feb26 codtf sp 4p CITY NOTICES. rude blasts of the elements, while a great and growing State grew up around it and a beautiful and expanding city spread out from it in all directions. The house was known among the early residents as the "Sulphur Springs House;" as the "Sulphur Springs House;" afterwards it was called the Miller Springs House," and subsequently the "Peck Schoolhouse." Ats demolition is the removal of an old-landmark, although it had become virtually lost in obscurity amidst the large and stately structures overshadowing it. Of late years it had been occupied by the most indigent class of tenantry, the cracks, holes and apertures, being stuffed with rags, chinks, etc. What is remarkable is that notwithstanding the length of time intervening since it ing the length of time intervening since it was first built, the red cedar when cut into is found to be as sound and firm and

Whereupon a motion was made that suitable resolutions be drafted expressing the sense of the meeting, embodying expressions of sorrow and regret occasioned by the death of Col. Albert Smith. A Com mittee of the Whole was then appointed and reported the following press

Whereas, By the workings of an insert tible fate, which we accept as the dispense tion of a Divine Providence, it has please the omnipotent and omnipresent God to take from our midst in the full vigor and activity of manhood, to that mysterious land of futurity beyond the valley and shadow of death, our co-la-borer, friend and fellow-townsman, Col. Therefore be i Resolved, That we accept this strok from the hand of a castening, yet lovin Father, as a wise, yet sad and regretful ne cessity, illustrative of our entire dependence and reliance upon His mysterious, yel certain love and power, and doubly illustrative of the fact that the death-angel, in his harvesting, strikes at the ripest sheaves

Jewish Wedding. About 5 o'clock yesterday evening, Mr A. Rosenthal, of Columbia, was married to Miss Selina Samuels, of this city. The ceremony took place at the Synagogue on Market street, about 5 o'clock last evening. The attendants to the bride on th eventful occasion were as follows: Misses Mary Sultzbacker, Louisa Kozmik, Sarah, Heims, Rachel Levick, Rachel Sam nels; and the bridegroom's waiters were Louis Franklin, Jas. Samuels, Leo. Zebert, T. Samuels, and J. Rosenthall. The ceremony commenced with the reading of the prayers by the congregation, and the rites of the Jewish Church com plied with-the reading of the marriage contract in Hebrew, and afterwards a very appropriate and eloquent prayer by N.
Lande, in English, after which he explained the matrimonial covenant, etc., etc. The ceremony throughout was very beautiful, and witnessed by a large sudience. After the ceremony the bridsl party repaired to the residence of Mr. Samuels, where a boun-tiful repast greeted them. At 8 p. m. there was a grand reception at Concordia Hal which was one of the most agreeable affairs of the season. The cloudy and gloomy weather without was in striking contrast with the brilliancy of the mar riage reception, attended as it was by the beauty and fashion of the city. With enlivening music dancing, and feasting, the occasion was one long to be remembered by the merry party who as-sembled at Concordia.
